Welcome to MedWater

MedWater uses a collaborative strategy to develop sustainable water, sanitation, and hygiene services.

MedWater collaborates with communities in the development of their own water, sanitation, and hygiene (WASH) services.

When Kichwa Women Lead

Indigenous women in Ecuador exist within a patriarchal system that largely defines their experience as women.

If you are a Kichwa woman, you're going to follow traditional roles in the household, preparing food, raising children, and serving as water managers.

Stepping beyond that is subconsciously out of the question.

Donate

When Kichwa Women Lead

Kichwa women identify themselves as being closed. They have more solitary time in their house taking care of their children than interacting with community.

If you are a Kichwa woman, much of your life may be spent making chicha, a drink made of yucca. The drink ferments as it ages so you may also have to deal with the domestic violence that is common from intoxicated partners.
